Note: A range containing a column that you want to split can include any number of rows, but it can include no more than one column. It's important to keep enough blank columns to the right of the selected column, which will prevent data in any adjacent columns from being overwritten by the data that is to be distributed.

Group adjacent multiple columns or rows separately by inserting blank columns or rows The first method only applied to two adjacent columns or rows, if there are more than two columns or rows needed to be grouped, it will not work successfully. An adjacent column is one next to the current column, on either side. Column B is adjacent to Column A. Column A and Column C are adjacent to Column B. Column B and Column D are adjacent to Column C. Feb 21, · Hold down the control key while you select the relevant column headersDavid Biddulph Tigerxxx wrote: Hello, How can group adjacent columns independently? If I group them one at a time they get grouped as one block. Please advise. Fill formulas into adjacent cells. You can use the Fill command to fill a formula into an adjacent range of cells. Simply do the following: Select the cell with the formula and the adjacent cells you want to fill. Jan 05, · I want to break a set of 52 columns (weeks) into relevant quarters using the group and outline function, however, Exel in its wisdom automatically merges adjacent groups. This could be made to work by inserting blank columns or summary columns between each quarter.
